

Utah Film Degrees
Alison Moxley
Word Count: 450

Arts, culture and entertainment. These are not usually the words that come to mind when we think of Utah, but the historic state has long been the home to many talented artists, actors and thespians. Salt Lake City, Utah's largest metropolis is the site of a number of cultural outlets including museums, art galleries, movie theaters and universities. Several movies and television shows including HBO's Big Love, Disney's High School Musical, the Halloween trilogy, Touched by an Angel and Legally Blonde have all been filmed in Salt Lake City.

Earning Utah film degrees are useful for those who are seeking a career in film editing, video production, scriptwriting and video editing. Other film students combine film studies and music to write movie scores. Many Utah film students use their talents to document the story of the Mormon Latter Day Saints' culture, the dominant religious sect in the area. Others use their Utah film degrees to go on to write documentaries and television shows, while some move further west to pursue Hollywood careers in acting.

There are a few select schools in Utah that offer film degrees, and choosing the right course of study is key to landing the best film career. Utah film degrees will launch the successful student into the path of successful film makers, writers and producers who have blazed a path before them. Finding the right school to pursue Utah film degrees is the best way to have a front row seat to a blockbuster film career.